DRAFT BILL EXTENDED TO JULY 1

G. Hartman To Assume Hospital Post

President Hancher Names Superintendent To Replace R. Neff

Gerhard Hartman, director of the Newton-Wellesley hospital in Massachusetts, has been named superintendent of University of Iowa hospitals, President Virgil Hancher announced yesterday.

GERHARD HARTMAN

succeeds Robert E. Neff, who recently resigned to take a similar position in Indianapolis, Ind.

The new appointee will begin his duties at the university early in the summer. He has two degrees from the University of Buffalo, and a Ph.D. in hospital administration from the University of Chicago.

Dr. Hartman has had wide experience in his profession. In addition to serving on the hospital administration faculty of the University of Chicago, he had important assignments as financial statistician in New York, N.Y., and Washington, D.C.

From 1937 to 1942 he was secretary of the American College of Hospital Administrators and since 1942 he has been director of the Newton-Wellesley hospital. He has written extensively for hospital journals and takes an active part in many professional associations.

The 35-year old Dr. Hartman is married and has one son.

Franco Report Reaches U.N. For Decision

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Nations announced last night that the security council would meet tomorrow at 10 a. m. (CDT) to consider rules which would tighten the secrecy of private council sessions and to take up a resolution affecting the admission of Albania to the United Nations.

Simultaneously, the five-man sub-committee investigating Franco Spain said it had received and was studying a 350-page document submitted by the Spanish Republican government-in-exile. This arraignment of Generalissimo Francisco Franco on charges that he menaces world peace and encourages atomic bomb experiments by Germans was submitted to the United Nations yesterday morning.

Five copies of the bulky charges were given to U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie by Dr. Jose Giral, premier of the Spanish Republican government-in-exile. After a 10-minute talk with the secretary-general and Arkady Sobolev, Lie's assistant in charge of security council matters, Dr. Giral told newsmen:

"Now the documents are in the hands of the United Nations and it is up to that organization to decide what is going to be done about the Spanish case." Formed Spanish Republicans said there was no official announcement of the contents but in the high points were allegations that Franco was a menace to international peace and security.

Iranians Advance on Azerbaijan

TEHRAN (AP)—Premier Jafar Pishevari of the self-proclaimed autonomous regime in Azerbaijan province declared last night that troops of the central Iranian government had "moved to our borders, but we are not afraid of an attack."

As Pishevari broadcast this statement over the Tabriz radio, Iranian troops streamed northward toward the troubled province where reports said separatist forces attired in Russian uniforms were holding warlike maneuvers. Azerbaijan province is adjacent to the boundary of the Soviet Union.

The central Iranian government reaffirmed its determination to avoid civil war. In his broadcast Pishevari described Ahmed Qavam, the premier of the central government as a "wise and patriotic man" and added: "He knows our strength."

Reactionary Elements
Telling the Azerbaijan people of the failure of the Azerbaijan-central government negotiations, Pishevari charged that "reactionary elements" had influenced the Tehran government's stand.

Harper Calls Union Educational Building

'No Smoking' Tabbed As Century Tradition In Talk to Students

Describing Iowa Memorial Union as an educational building and the "home of the university family," Dr. Earl E. Harper, Union director, told Student Council and Union Board members last night that the Union is a division of the university like any of the colleges and as such is subject to rules of conduct conceived by the university administration and approved by the board of education.

A basic tradition of the Union, Dr. Harper said, is to prohibit smoking in the Union lounge so that the students may enjoy beautiful furniture. He commented that he "doesn't think that one year's student opinion should radically change conditions representing experience of a century."

The Union Board, he said, as the governing body of the student union (the entire student body), has no power over the administration of the Iowa Union plant. Outside of sponsoring tea dances and other social activities at the Union, Union Board has only power to recommend action by the university administration.

The Union is open on an equal basis to all members of the student union, the faculty, administration, alumni, Union trustees and all persons who contributed money to the construction of the building.

Areas in the Union not open to the "university family" are the Triangle club rooms and the University club rooms. The Triangle club paid $50,000 for a 50-year lease for their part of the Union, Dr. Harper explained, and the University club rooms are rented on a yearly basis.

The Union staff are simply advisers, Dr. Harper said, with all functions taking place there sponsored by separate organizations. If students wished to effect a change in any of the university rules enforced at the Union, they may report suggested changes to the Union Board, whose members, as liaison officials of the student body, will pass the suggestions along to the Union administrators.

Any variation in rules would then have to be approved by the university administration in the person of the faculty committee one student life and eventually by the board of education.

Approval of British Loan Gains Headway

WASHINGTON (AP)—The British loan cleared its first formidable hurdle in the house yesterday as that body shelved a resolution that would have nullified senate approval of the $3,750,000,000 transaction.

After the decision, Chairman Spence (D, Ky.) of the house banking committee told newsmen: "I believe now the bill will pass."

He criticized the central government's action in bringing the recent Iranian-Russian oil agreement into the conversations and termed this agreement a "foreign affair" while the Azerbaijan problem is "strictly internal."

Breach of Agreement
Pishevari said that any attack by the Iranian army on Azerbaijan troops would constitute a breach of the agreement Qavam reached with the Soviet Union, and added that Qavam was "aware that our army is made up of fighting men who will not be defeated."

The Azerbaijan premier made no reference to any plan to return to Tehran for further negotiations, although Qavam had said earlier that the delegation from the province had only returned to Tabriz "for new instructions."

Field Maneuvers
An observer returning from Tabriz, capital of the self-proclaimed autonomous province of Azerbaijan, said the Azerbaijan national army, "smartly attired in Russian uniforms," was staging field maneuvers between Mianeh and Zanjan, northwest of Tehran.

Wheat Plan To Continue Through 1946

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government announced yesterday a wheat program that will mean continued skimming on bread, meat, beer and whisky for the next 13½ months to help feed hungry people abroad.

Previously the government had hoped to lift the restrictions on wheat, flour, etc., this summer after the 1946 wheat crop is harvested. Yesterday's announcement means that the curbs will not be abolished before the summer of 1947, unless there is another change in the situation.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said the plan might be changed later.

The program will provide considerably less wheat for food for the American dinner table during the 12 months beginning July 1, 1946, as compared with the year that began July 1, 1945. It will provide about half as much wheat for feeding to livestock—that means less meat—and none at all for brewing and distilling.

English Lover Kills Fiance With Embrace

LONDON (AP)—Florence Quarrel's fiancee hugged and kissed her so ardently that she collapsed and died, a London coroner said yesterday.

During an inquest, Leslie Bowner told the coroner that he and the girl, who was 22, had been kissing when she collapsed in an armchair.

A government pathologist testified that during an embrace Bowner exerted pressure on a vulnerable nerve center in his sweetheart's neck which caused immediate paralysis of the lung and heart functions.

An Iranian army announcement said a battalion of troops moved northward through Kazvin toward the Caspian coast and that an added 50 troop carriers, each bearing 25 men, were headed northward out of Tehran this morning. Armored gendarmerie units moved along the Caspian coast north of Pahlevi.

Shifting of Support
Reliable Iranian sources expressed belief that the military and some local northern tribes were shifting their support from the government of Premier Ahmed Qavam to the young shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

(There was no elaboration of this portion of the dispatch. It might indicate, however, that the military was dissatisfied with the government's handling of the Azerbaijan problem and sought firmer action from the shah.)

The observer from Tabriz estimated the strength of the Azerbaijan army at about 24,000 men. Estimates of Iranian army strength vary from 60,000 to 80,000.

Byrnes Asks Recess Of 4-Power Session

U.S. Proposes July Meeting for 21-Nation Allied Peace Council

PARIS (AP)—United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes proposed last night that the four-power conference of foreign ministers adjourn until June 15, trying meanwhile to reconcile its differences, and that the 21-nation peace conference be convened at once for July 1 or 15.

The American secretary in a formal statement said the conference should recognize frankly that divisions exist and should fulfill its obligations to the Allied nations by setting a definite date for the peace conference. If that date is not set now, he said, it should be set at the June 15 session.

Byrnes also asked the foreign ministers to sign a revised armistice with Italy immediately to ease Italy's burden.

The British and French delegations concurred. The Soviet delegation, however, sought time to discuss the proposals. Byrnes said "the Soviet representative had declined so far to agree with this course," and that "invitations to the conference cannot be sent except by unanimous consent."

Byrnes also proposed that there be placed on the agenda for the June 15 session the drafting of a treaty with Austria. "The deputies being instructed to prepare meantime a draft of proposals for the consideration of the council."

An American source said the Austrian proposal drew quick protest from the Soviet delegation.

Today's meeting, an American source said, will decide whether China may sit at the conference table to discuss Germany. This source said the United States would insist upon Chinese attendance as a member of the five-power council if the German problem was to be discussed in full.

Truman Makes Effort to Halt Rail Strike

Soft Coal Operators Reaffirm Opposition To Payroll Levy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The long dormant negotiations between the railroad operating unions and management were revived last night after President Truman made a last ditch effort to head off a nationwide transportation tieup set for Saturday.

Meanwhile, soft coal operators reaffirmed their opposition to the principle of the seven percent payroll levy for a miners' welfare fund demanded by John L. Lewis, shattering any hope of immediate settlement of the coal controversy.

No Recess
A person close to the operators and in attendance at their special night session said there was "no recess from their former position of adamant opposition to the acceptance of a tax on payroll or a royalty on the coal, to go to Lewis for his unchecked use."

The producers met to draft a reply to Lewis' demand, to be handed to the United Mine workers' president today, and subsequently to President Truman, who had asked for a report on negotiations by tonight. Most of the 400,000 bituminous miners were working under a two-week truce in their strike, expiring May 25.

Agreement Seemed Remote
In view of the position of Lewis and the operators, hope of coming to an agreement even before the end of the truce seemed remote. The operators will meet again this morning to complete their reply.

The White House announced that President Truman held three separate conferences in the railroad dispute. The first was with A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and Alvanley Johnston, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Some 250,000 members of these two unions are under instructions to leave their jobs Saturday.

Talked Over Dispute
Mr. Truman met next with representatives of the conductors, firemen and switchmen and then talked over the dispute with J. J. Peley and other officials of the Association of American Railroads.

Charles G. Ross, presidential secretary, said all agreed to carry on negotiations concurrently starting last night and would give the President a progress report Friday.

The "big five" operating brotherhoods are standing on original demands for pay boosts averaging $2.50 daily. The conductors, firemen and switchmen have threatened to go on strike at some later date if their demands are not met. A third railroad strike threat at some future date has come from the 15 railroad non-operating unions who got ready to send out strike ballots to more than 1,100,000 members for a poll that will be completed June.

The unions were granted or offered wage boosts of 16 cents hourly—slightly more than half their demands.

A strike, if voted, would not occur for 60 more days under the machinery of the Railway Labor act.

Shambaugh Residence Bequeathed to SU; To Use Home as University Guest House

BENJAMIN F. SHAMBAUGH MEMORIAL

The Benjamin F. Shambaugh residence, famed for its hospitality to many of the University of Iowa's most distinguished visitors, will be known to later generations as the Shambaugh Guest House.

President Virgil M. Hancher announced yesterday that Mrs. Shambaugh had bequeathed this property at 219 N. Clinton street to the university as a memorial to her husband. Mrs. Shambaugh will continue occupancy during her lifetime. The state board of education has accepted the gift under the terms and for the purpose specified.

In the years to come, official guests of the university will be entertained and lodged in the Shambaugh Guest House during their stay in Iowa City. The house is two blocks from Old Capitol. Upon later dedication, a memorial plaque will be provided.

Served in Double Role
A native of Iowa and a graduate of the university, Professor Shambaugh had served the state of Iowa in the double capacity as head of the political science department in the university and as superintendent of the State Historical society for 44 years.

At the time of his death in 1940 at the age of 69, he was the department head longest in active service and as superintendent of the State Historical society, he had long been acknowledged as "Dean of State Institutional Heads in Iowa."

A Brookings Institute survey in 1933 pronounced the Commonwealth service of Prof. Shambaugh "unsurpassed by any institution in any state in the union."

For many years Professor Shambaugh was in charge of the university lecture series, bringing to the campus distinguished speakers from all parts of the world and all fields of learning. It was in

Doenitz' Son-in-Law Testifies Before Court

NUERNBERG (AP)—Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz' son-in-law testified yesterday before the International Military tribunal that "U-boat traps" were partially responsible for Nazi orders forbidding rescue of survivors of torpedoed ships.

Capt. Guenther Hessler, husband of Doenitz' only daughter, testified as a defense witness that in two instances the crews of apparently abandoned ships suddenly manned guns and opened fire on his submarine.

Truman Signs Stop-Gap Bill In Reluctance

President Endorses Amendments to Avoid Selective Service End

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman affixed a reluctant signature last night to a stop-gap bill extending the draft until July 1, but banning the induction of fathers and youths 18 and 19 years old.

Confronted with the alternatives of accepting the amendments or letting the whole wartime selective service law expire at midnight, the president chose "the lesser of two evils," as his secretary put it.

The secretary, Charles G. Ross, told reporters that the president regarded it as a "bad bill." It was passed because the two houses of congress were unable to get together in time on a longer extension.

Less than six hours before the midnight deadline, the senate agreed to the house restrictions on inductions, and Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle sped the measure to the White House.

There Secretary Ross informed newsmen: "The president doesn't like it at all, but feels, as some of his officials do, that it will be better to sign it than have confusion that will result from failure to continue a legislative support for armed force inductions."

Selective service announced that its present ban on the induction of men 26 and over will be continued, despite the fact that the act as renewed permits the drafting of men through age 29.

In a telegram to state draft directors the agency also formally halted the induction of 'teen age youths. It said, however, that men 18 and 19 still will be required to register.

Only men 20 through 25 will be drafted. This reduces selective service to a comparatively tiny reservoir of manpower. Officials estimated that there were only 59,000 eligibles left in this age bracket, of whom perhaps 50 percent would be found physically unfit.

The telegram said local boards should not "take any of the following actions with respect to any registrant who has not reached his twentieth birthday:

(A) Order any such registrant to report for preinduction physical examination;

(B) Forward any such registrant for preinduction physical examination;

(C) Forward any such registrant for induction; or

(E) Forward any such registrant to work of national importance under civilian direction." (This refers to conscientious objectors.)

The signing took place at 8 p. m. Central Daylight Time. The president planned to issue a statement on the subject today. Meanwhile, Secretary of War Patterson issued a statement saying:

"I have just learned that the senate passed the extension of the selective service until July 1 as modified by the house of representatives. I hope that before July 1 an extension of selective service for one year will be adopted by the congress in such form as to permit the war department to carry out the tasks expected of it by the nation."

The senate vote came after Senator Langer (R, N. D.) had talked for more than four hours opposing peacetime conscription.

Fearful that congress would not act before midnight, President Truman late afternoon signed an executive order continuing the draft organization intact, but without power to induct any more men.

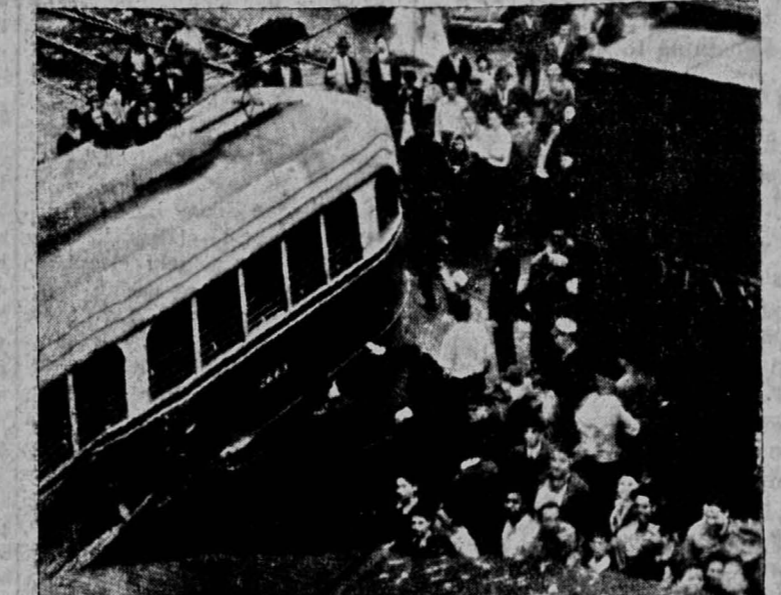

However, the White House made plain that it stood ready to rescind this order after action by congress.

Langer said he was "absolutely and completely opposed to conscription in peacetime and did not propose to have it fastened upon the American people if I can help it."

Editorials:

If Bill Calls It Vital, You Can Bet It Is!

"Never use the adjective 'vital' in a story unless it concerns a life-and-death matter," Bill Forbes, tough, honored city editor used to tell his cub reporters.

It was a hard-and-fast rule that Bill never relaxed. He accepted only the strictest Webster interpretation of the word: "Existing as a manifestation of life; being the seat of life."

But we don't think Bill would have hesitated to describe the Iowa City police safety program as "vital." The program is, without doubt, a matter of life or death.

The city's traffic safety program was opened with Mayor Teeters' proclamation and will run until July 1. During that period, motorists are urged to correct mechanically faulty automobiles and to learn safe driving practices.

"Check your driving—check your car—check accidents," is the police department's slogan for the drive.

Most important phase of the program is the necessity for every motorist to "check his driving." Nothing can replace safe driving practices, and even the most mechanically perfect car is to no avail if the man behind the wheel uses it carelessly.

And control of speed is the greatest single factor in safe driving habits.

The United States bureau of public roads recently reported that a survey showed excessive speed figured in 75 percent of the accidents. According to the report, speed outranked by far any other accident factor.

Another survey showed that the next two highest contributing causes of accidents were liquor and faulty vision.

Even accidents appearing on the records as resulting from mechanical defects in the opinion of many authorities should be transferred in the safety ledger to driver shortcomings. As the report of the motor vehicle commissioner of New York state points out: "No operator drives his car at excessive speed, runs a motor vehicle with inadequate brakes or proceeds under other dangerous conditions of weather without knowingly doing so."

As one wiseacre put it: "It's the nut behind the wheel that causes accidents."

Every motorist in Iowa City—residents and students alike—need to check themselves and their cars during this safety program period, rapidly increasing traffic death toll.

It is only the motorist who can reduce that risk in the coming year will kill 40,000 men, women and children. Such crimes can be prevented only by thoroughly-practiced safety measures.

HOLLYWOOD REFUGEE WORKS FOR INDEPENDENCE—

Indonesian's Glamor Girl

—HELPS WITH PROPAGANDA VIA JAVA RADIO

By VERN HAUGLAND AP Newsfeatures

BATAVIA, Java—One of the few white persons to side openly with the Indonesians seeking independence from the Dutch is a red-haired, bobby-soxed refugee from Hollywood with all the mystery of Garbo.

She has five names—Ketoei Tantri, bestowed by a Balinese rajah; Miss Vannin Manx, from the Isle of Man where the Dutch say she was born; Mrs. Rosenberg, according to Dutch records; Miss Davenport, and Soerabaja Sue, after the Indonesian republican stronghold.

The Dutch have some more for her not so pretty, and the feeling is mutual.

She says they have grown rich by underpaying Indonesians to extract wealth from the lush Indies and have kept them ignorant to hold them in subjection, with the result that only seven percent of the 70,000,000 in the Dutch East Indies are literate.

A Champion of Freedom
In interviews with Indonesian reporters and in broadcasts over the Indonesian radio at Soerakarta and Djokjakarta, this most noted Java radio announcer and uncrowned queen of the Indonesians has set forth her conviction that these people deserve freedom—"merdeka."

She defends the islanders for working with the occupying Japanese on the ground that "it was to their advantage and their country's advantage."

Tantri—she likes her Indonesian name best—claims to have found not one widely circulated book giving the Indonesian argument but many by the Dutch, for the Dutch.

Keeps Young Appearance
Trim and slight, Tantri though going on middle age wears jackets, short skirts, low heels, bobby sox, dark glasses and a pageboy bob. She used to dye her hair black to please the Indonesians, who have a superstition against red hair.

Tantri, so she says, had "fame and fortune in my grasp," in Hollywood some 15 years ago when a personal tragedy about which she declines to talk cost her her husband and her two children, both the latter now dead. She wanted to get away—to stay. She went to Bali, east of Java.

There eight rajahs in succession adopted her, she relates, and nearly every one proposed marriage and was turned down, because Tantri didn't want to get their wives—one had 42—angry with her. She adopted the Hindu religion.

She ran a small resort hotel near Den Pasar, Bali, entertaining Lady Ashley and Douglas Fairbanks, among others; with the outbreak of war, came to Java as interpreter to an American colonel, but declined evacuation when he fled, and welcomed the Japanese when they came, going to work for them.

Accused as Spy
Later they accused her of being a spy and, off and on for three years, tried by torture to get a confession. When the war ended, she was a guest of the British with other internees at the Oranje Soerabaja hotel. When the Indonesian independence movement flared up, she joined it.

"The Dutch had the British to fight for them," she explains. "The Indonesians needed what help they could get."

She is giving it to them, and she declares: "When the laws of citizenship are ratified, I will become the first foreign Indonesian."

Candidate, 100, Plans 1948 Campaign

Figures He Will Live to Be Re-Elected

AP Newsfeatures
PEN ARGYL, Pa. — William Timney Allen celebrated his 100th birthday by announcing his candidacy for reelection as tax assessor two years hence.

At least that is the hopeful interpretation given by his Republican constituents, as well as a number of Democrats, to his cryptic answer to a question about his political plans for 1948.

Said Allen: "I guess I won't do much running this time—I think I'll just walk."

The Pen Argyl centenarian has a campaign slogan, running or walking, however, which just about assures his reelection: "Take it easy on the taxpayers in your assessments. The property owners can't raise their rents; it's against the law, you know." He now is serving his sixth four-year term as assessor.

His Birth Certificate
Upon reaching the century mark recently Allen admitted he was "getting old." To prove his age he produced a photostatic copy of an English birth certificate which said William Timney Allen was born Feb. 7, 1846, in Melrose, St. Teath Parish, Cornwall county, England, to Nicholas and Mary (nee Radcliffe) Allen. Allen is the last survivor of 42 English and Welsh pioneers who landed April 2, 1864, in New York City after a voyage from Liverpool.

Much of his boyhood had been spent in English slate quarry towns, so it was natural that he found employment with Pennsylvania slate operators soon after he settled in nearby Chapman Quarry.

Later he turned to slate prospecting and subsequently operated his own quarries.

Chops Wood Daily
He enjoys an occasional automobile ride, but not as much as his "constitutional"—an almost daily walk of considerable distance done at a steady, spry gait. Wood chopping is an every day "must" and on his 100th birthday he was presented an axe by Pen Argyl business with his name engraved on it.

His wood-chopping routine, together with his philosophy of "taking days one at a time and avoiding worry," he admits, "may have something to do with my having been sick a-bed only one day in my life."

Urge Passage Of FEPC Bill

TO THE EDITOR: Last night (Monday) a group of students—all veterans—got together and discussed the problem of Negro discrimination. The conclusions drawn from the discussion were put into the form of the following telegram to the local congressman, Representative Thomas E. Martin.

"A group of veteran students State University of Iowa, after very careful deliberation, urge immediate consideration and passage of the fair employment practices act. The welfare of the nation demands full democratic equality under the law which cannot be attained with anything less than full economic equality.

"We therefore demand you publicly support FEPC and that you vehemently urge our senators to do likewise. We will be following you closely in order to determine your stand."

I believe that if our democracy is to prove itself effective, the people must make themselves heard. Our group did just this.

And we urge all who believe in the principles of a "fair employment committee" to make themselves heard. Write and wire your congressman and let him know you will hold him accountable for the successful passage of the FEPC bill!

Tremendous success for the CIO political action movement in the South was predicted yesterday by Tony Fontellio-Nanton, graduate assistant in the school of journalism. Speaking about minority groups before a U. S. and You meeting, he explained the CIO organization accepts Negro and white workers on the same basis. Improving the economic position of the Negroes would not be as effective as educational programs, Fontellio-Nanton said. He suggested more education to teach white persons how to get along with Negroes.

The Cost of Medals

Who won all the medals? Was the infantry slighted relative to the air corps? Was the army more generous with its "fruit salad" than the navy and marines?

Those questions have been kicked around in "bull sessions" for a long time. Now, we have some figures—which won't prove or disprove anything, but which are interesting.

About 60 percent of the army's combat deaths were suffered by the infantry while 14 percent of those killed were in the air corps. Nevertheless, the air corps received over six times as many decorations as the infantry—1,294,719 awards to the infantry's 197,308.

These figures do not include Purple Hearts, but do include over 1,000,000 air medals and clusters issued for air operations against the enemy while the infantry never tried to issue a medal to reward days spent in the front line.

Of the higher medals, the infantry won five times as many Medals of Honor, three times as many distinguished service crosses and eight times as many silver stars as the air corps. The air corps outnumbered the infantry but the proportion of men in actual combat was far higher in the infantry.

The air medals and bronze stars, according to figures, were more liberally bestowed by the army than by the navy and marines. Yet, of the nation's two highest awards, the Medal of Honor cost the army 917.6 men killed for each award, the navy 550 and the marines 368.9. The DSC and the navy cross, the nation's second highest awards, cost the army 55.1 killed, the navy 12.3 and the marines 27 for each award.

Like a Ball Bat

The Columbia county draft board at Portage, Wis., took a non-to-subtle slap at John L. Lewis the other day. The board sent a telegram to Col. John F. Mullen, director of the state selective service.

"Board out on strike pending receipt of authority from John L. Lewis to go back to work," the telegram read. "Will reconvene when coal strike is settled. Government fears Lewis. So do we. We dare not incur his displeasure in the event he takes over the government."

Time and the Cow

(From the New York Herald Tribune)
Cows, of course, wear no wrist watches, nor are even the most modern dairy barns equipped with an alarm clock to awaken recumbent, sweet-sleeping Guernseys. Time to a cow is something set by the milking hour, by the opening of clover blossoms, by the first frost on late pastures and, in winter, by the approach of footsteps which mean the tossing down of a forkful of hay.

No one, we believe, who has ever lived in daily relationship with a cow will deny that she is as set in her ways, as much a creature of diurnal whim and habit, as is a Long Island commuter. No cow, to our knowledge, has ever gone on record as approving any such odd arrangement as daylight saving time. However good the changeful system may be for the average man, for a cow it is a disturbing delusion which alters on some sudden Sunday the time for milking, the time for feeding, the moment of release from stanchions to green pastures where dandies reckon hours by the sun.

This very natural attitude in a conservative bovine world, gently implacable against change, caused some 50 farmers who supply the two community dairies of Clearfield, Pa., to threaten a strike when April 28 arrived this year. Their bewildered cows, they declared, promptly gave less milk as a result of the required variation in milking hours. This week the same protesting farmers—perhaps after some system of indoctrination by their intelligent herds—agreed to give up the plan for a strike, but only upon the understanding that the question of daylight saving in their town should be put to popular vote in the fall election. Cows, we presume, will be barred from the polls. But if Guernseys could vote, if Jerseys and Holsteins could electioneer, the farmers, we believe, would win hands down and milk pails full.

Covering The Capital

By Jack Stinnett
(Second of Two Articles)

WASHINGTON—"This is a handbook on how to get rid of a congressman who has turned out to be a mistake, how to disintegrate political conventions, and how to throw your weight around in politics generally."

That's the way Columnist Lowell Mellett opens his "Handbook of Politics and Voter's Guide." He adds:

"This (book) is not about how to get only your best citizens elected to office, or even how to decide which is the best man in a list of candidates in the primary. The people who have the most effect in cleaning up American politics are those who spend their time shooting at the bad ones, not holding out for the best among the good ones."

This is the sum and substance of Lowell Mellett's book. If you have a representative, senator, governor or state or local official whom you consider bad, don't waste your vote on "the best man." Vote for the man (or woman) who is most likely to beat him, Mellett says, explaining:

"It is always worthwhile to defeat a bad man running for reelection, even if his successor is just as bad. . . . While the new man also might be a wrong one, he is your wrong one. If he is only wrong in his ideas, you may be able to influence him some, and so a little progress is made."

A chapter on "How to Be a Politician" opens the book. Here is the way "little you" can sway votes. "Insist on registration of friends or acquaintances who never have voted before and you become a political power—a small one, perhaps, but a power your elective officers won't forget."

"Nothing is more important," says Mellett, "than this business of registering. The first practical fact of politics is that a big vote is a good vote. The reactionaries seldom desire a big vote. They are afraid of the voters, and whenever they think they can get away with it they make voting as inconvenient as they can."

You can agree or disagree with this. Few politicians, aside from some southern state leaders, who have something to say about the poll tax or other voting limitations, can be tagged as "afraid of the voters."

However, the stand in the senate and house on whether 18-year-olds should be allowed to vote is certainly a point for Mellett on this score.

Mellett's book winds up with pages of state election facts and figures which I'll bet you don't know. I didn't. After that are reams on how your congressman and mine has voted. If you don't think that's important, check it over.

Because of his unexampled success in writing operas and the honors showered upon him, the mind of the Italian composer, Gaetano Donizetti, gave way and he was insane the last four years of his life. "Lucia di Lammermoor" was one of his operas.

Plans for Naval Air Reserve Program to Be Discussed Here

Meeting in Schaeffer Tuesday for Former Navy, Marine Crews

Recently completed plans for a naval air reserve program will be discussed by Lt. Cmdr. R. W. Fleck, USNR, at a meeting in room 221A, Schaeffer hall Tuesday, at 4:10 p. m. All former navy and marine air crew members, both officers and enlisted men, who are interested in the peacetime naval reserve training program are urged to attend the meeting.

The new program, to start July 1, will provide 100 hours flying time annually for pilots enrolled in the Ready reserve and 50 hours a year for Standby reserve aviators.

Designed to prevent naval and marine air corps personnel from "cooling off," the program will enable pilots who have returned to civilian life to fly air craft currently in use in the fleet—at navy pay, in the case of the Ready reserve—instead of haphazard flying at their own expense in crates and "one-lungers." The latest types of naval planes, including fighter, bombers, patrol planes, trainers and utility planes will be available.

Ground personnel and aircrewmen will also be allowed to continue flying and keep abreast of the latest developments in post-war naval aviation.

The program will help keep the naval air arm of the service prepared for any national emergency. Plans call for the organization of the Ready reserve into groups, squadrons and units to be maintained on a 30-day fleet readiness basis.

Personnel for training, technical, and administrative billets will be provided through the Standby reserve. It will be a semitrained reserve designed as a sound potential to naval combat strength.

Between now and July 1 reserve aviators on inactive status may fly at least two hours pilot time a month.

Researcher Predicts Chemical Production From Farm Articles

"Although there is famine today throughout the world, in a few years there will be abundance, and agricultural products will be used as raw materials for the manufacture of chemicals," Dr. Albert L. Elder, Argo, Ill., said last night. Dr. Elder, the director of research of the Corn Products Refinement company, spoke to the Iowa chapter of the American Chemical society in the Chemistry building.

Corn, heterogeneous matter, is broken down into proteins, starch and fats which are the bases of all chemicals. At the present time 12 percent of the corn crop is used for the manufacture of chemicals. The plant at Argo has a capacity of 100,000 bushels of corn a day. Other agricultural products used in the manufacture of chemicals are: wheat, rye, barley and flaxseed.

Dr. Elder illustrated with slides the method of separation of corn into starch, fat and protein.

Zenin, one of the derivatives of corn protein, is used in the manufacture of shellacs and other oil and water resistant and repellants. Furfural, a derivative of corn cob, was used during the war to remove coloring from oils and to manufacture abrasives.

"There is a great need for fundamental research," Dr. Elder said, "for the practical applications are ahead of research developments."

Why Mike DiBiase Came to Iowa—

THE UNIVERSITY of Iowa's athletic department is a cheating outfit that is putting out tremendous salaries to its athletes. . . Or at least, that's the obvious opinion of a very bitter gentleman named Floyd Olds, who is sports editor of the Omaha World Herald. . . Mr. Olds must have a deep grudge against Iowa. . . Maybe his mother was scared by the rascals hiding in the tall corn on this side of the Missouri. . . Anyway, his latest tirade against the Hawkeyes is just another in a series of angry attacks that hints Iowa is stealing and buying the sports stars away from other schools, Nebraska U. in particular. . . Floyd—who built himself a dream castle in thinking the National AAU wrestling champ and star footballer, Mike DiBiase, was going to Nebraska—said the following nasty things when he learned big Mike was in the Iowa camp.

"IT ISN'T surprising that Mike DiBiase has decided to attend school at Iowa instead of Nebraska. Now is it any check that he received 'a better offer' from the Hawkeyes than from the Cornhuskers. . . Football players who are shopping for the best financial reward won't find it at the University of Nebraska. This state institution, thank goodness, still operates under the old-fashioned idea that a boy comes to school primarily to get an education, with athletics secondary—and strictly on an amateur basis. . . Nebraska coaches tell prospective players that they can find part-time jobs in Lincoln. But they will have to work. No clock-winding blinds. If they make the varsity they will receive part of their meals at the training table, to the extent approved by the Big Six conference. And that is all. . . They aren't promised any wages, because Nebraska has no slush fund such as many other schools hold out as bait to lure husky griders. . . Nebraska isn't bidding in the open market for athletes. . . Time will prove that strict amateurism is the only formula for long-range success in college athletics.

MIKE DIBIASE It Wasn't a Better Offer

MY, MY, what naughty, insinuating words. . . Especially when a day or two previously, Mr. Olds included this in a signed article in the World Herald: "Better facilities for wrestling at Iowa influenced my decision," Mike (DiBiase) told Omaha friends. "I would like to play for Masterson (Husker grid coach), but wrestling in the Big Ten is so much more important than it is at Nebraska. . . But in conversation with friends, Mike also admitted he had a 'better offer' to attend school at Iowa. . . DiBiase's decision may mean more than his loss to the Cornhusker football line. Emil Sitko and Sam Vacanti had been counted as possibilities for the Husker backfield because of their friendship with DiBiase."

NOW, HOW about a little truth? . . . It's absurd to deny most of Olds's slurs, because all you have to do is ask those who are Iowa athletes how much "big money" they're raking in. . . Forty-bucks-a-month jobs around the campus is the limit here, strictly approved by Big Ten rulings. . . BUT, CONTRARY to what the Nebraska henchmen say, Mike DiBiase was not bought by Iowa. . . He intended to come here when he graduated from Tech high in Omaha four years ago. . . But the navy got him. . . Del Bartels, who is one of Dr. Eddie Anderson's fastest backs in spring drills, said that when he and Mike played together on the Norman (Okla.) navy team three years ago, Mike had such a strong leaning toward the Hawkeyes that everyone thought he had played here.

SAMMY VACANTI Not a Cornhusker, Either

AND RUMMY MACIAS, Iowa's star grappler, returned from the NAAU mat meet in New York in April to tell us that DiBiase definitely was coming here to wrestle and play football. . . Rummy and Mike struck up quite an acquaintance there while the big Omaha lad was winning the national title. . . Mr. Olds got bitten when he graduated from Tech high in Omaha four years ago. . . And here's some more news for Mr. Olds, the Huskers' No. 1 booster: NEBRASKA ISN'T GOING TO GET SAM VACANTI, EITHER. . . The pitcher's quarterback attended here two years and competed in 1942, going to the Marines to play for Purdue the following season. . . Where is he going? . . . Iowa, brother, Iowa—where he belongs. . . But isn't it touching to think that Mr. Olds believed those four would all go to Lincoln—a school none of them had ever attended before—just FOR THE LOVE OF DEAR OLD NEBRASKA.

Practice Tilt Ends Spring Drills

By CHAD BROOKS

A promise of the long awaited return of big time football hit the Iowa campus yesterday afternoon when 35 Old Gold grid candidates, who seemed to know what the game is all about, ended their spring drills with an intrasquad "scrimmage" game.

The White team, composed of first stringers most of the way, drilled over three second half touchdowns against their red clad teammates for a 19-6 victory, but even more promising was the collection of big, rough linemen and fast, powerful backs that have returned from the service to bolster the Hawkeye grid machine that sputtered its way through three dreary wartime years as one of the doormats of the Big Ten.

Leading the ex-serviceman invasion, at least as far as yesterday's game is concerned, are such "name" players as Roger Kane, 230-pound guard on the 1942 Hawkeye eleven; Tony Guzewski, a rough and tough marine veteran; former all-state high schooler Boz Zender and Dick Laster; Seahawk veteran Ray Carlson; 1942 freshman Del Bartels, and left halfback Russ Fechter, a post-war resident of Iowa City.

Of course, Hawk coach Dr. Eddie Anderson will hasten to add that Iowa will need more than just a "good" eleven in next fall's conference race. He has pointed out repeatedly that an outstanding Big Ten eleven must have near perfect balance, not only between the line and the backfield, but in offensive speed, power and passing.

It is well known that the present Old Gold squad is lacking in two line spots, tackle and center, and in backfield speed and passing.

Some of these holes may be plugged by the return of former Hawkeye lettermen still in the service and the addition of some promising candidates that have spent the spring as members of baseball and track squads. On this list are candidates Jim Keane, end, and backs Sam Vacanti, "Duke" Curran and Dick Hoerner, all sophomore stars in 1942; and linemen Dick Woodard, Jim Cozad, Joe Grothus and Bob Liddy, with backs Rog Stevens.

Add trackmen Otis Finney and Henry Terrell and Nelson Smith, from the war-time elevens. Rex Ploen, baseballer Johnny Tedore and tackle Mike DeBiase and you have a pretty good picture of Anderson's 1946 prospects.

The White team took a 6-0 lead early in the second half of yesterday's battle when Bill Gallagher, 1943 "Grid Kid" fullback, plunged over from the five after a 40-yard march that featured the running of halfbacks Fechter and Bartels. The Reds tied the count when 160-pound Dick Grenda put on a one man show to move the ball to the four, where Charlie Heider tossed a touchdown pass to end Don Michaelson.

The winning margin came in the opening minute of the final period, when Fechter broke away for a 35-yard touchdown romp, the longest run of the game, and the final score came when end Sherman Howard intercepted one of Heider's left handed heaves to go over all alone.

Wednesday—Purdue at Butler.
Thursday—Wheaton at Chicago.
Friday and Saturday—Indiana at Illinois; Michigan at Minnesota; Bradley Tech at Purdue.
Saturday—Illinois Tech at Chicago.

Six wins and three losses would move the Hawkeye baseball forces to a higher standing in the Big Ten conference and Coach Otto Vogel's charges will be out for just that record when they meet Northwestern at Evanston, Ill. in a two game series this weekend.

Currently Iowa is in sixth place with four wins and three losses and the Wildcats are holding down seventh with Ohio State, each with a two wins and three loss record.

Catcher Lyle Ebner continues to lead the Hawkeye batting power with a .386 average. Ebner has hit safely 17 times in 44 trips to the plate. Keith Kafer and Bill Diehl are next in line with .289 and .283 averages respectively.

Dick Bokelman will be the master Iowa hitters have to solve. Bokelman held the Hawks to five hits last year in losing 5-4.

Availability of "Doc" Dunagan, Iowa shortstop, is as yet undecided. Dunagan took one of his twin daughters to a Des Moines specialist Monday and may not be able to make the trip to Evanston. If Dunagan does not play, Kafer will be moved from third to short and Leo Cabalka will take over the vacated spot.

Senators Snap Tiger String at Eight, 15-1

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tiger's eight game winning streak blew up yesterday in the face of a 20-hit Washington uprising that produced a 15 to 1 triumph for knuckleballer Roger Wolf.

Wolf, coasting to his third victory of the season, had a four-hit shutout until Tiger left fielder Anise Moore homered in the ninth. After tagging lefthander Frank (Stubby) Overmire for three runs on a five-hit attack in the third, the Senators really went hit-wacky in the fifth, scoring eight times off Tommy Bridges and George Caster as 12 men batted and seven of them hit safely.

The Nats slugged out eight extra-base blows, including Buddy Lewis' three-run homer in the fifth and seven doubles, three of them in the ninth as four more runs scampered across.

Lewis, with a homer, double and single in six times at bat, knocked in five runs and Jeff Heath drove in four with three doubles and a single in many trips.

Lesnevich KO's Freddie Mills

LONDON (AP) — Gus Lesnevich of Cliffside, N. J., knocked out Great Britain's Freddie Mills in the tenth round of their 15-round fight for the world light heavyweight title last night before 11,000 spectators.

Referee Eugene Henderson stopped the bout after Lesnevich, defending his world crown, flattened Mills twice in the tenth round, once for a count of nine. Mills got up after that and tried to carry on. A right to the jaw sprawled him on the floor again and the referee raised Lesnevich's right hand without stopping to count.

Mills, a former sergeant in the RAF and the British empire's 175 pound king, proved a much tougher opponent for the champion than anyone predicted. He went down three times for a count of nine in the second round but came back swinging to close Lesnevich's left eye in later rounds.

Little Hawks Host In Triangular Meet

University high, Iowa City high, and Mt. Vernon trackmen will meet this afternoon in a triangular meet on the Little Hawk's track in Iowa City.

Each school will enter contestants in all individual events, both running and field contests. In addition, a 440-yard relay and mile medley will be run.

Both the Rivermen and Little Hawks have strong relay teams, but in all previous meets between the two squads, City high has emerged the victors.

Name Davis Cup Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Parker, Ted Schroeder, Billy Talbert and Gardnar Mulloy will make up the United States Davis Cup team which meets the Philippines in the first round at St. Louis, June 14-16, team captain Walter L. Pate announced last night.

Rambler Cage Forces Honored at Banquet Attended by 200 Fans

Two hundred persons paid tribute to St. Mary's basketball team and coach last night at the ninth annual banquet in St. Mary's school assembly hall. Father John Schmitz, St. Mary's assistant pastor and athletic director, presented a testimonial check to Coach Francis Sueppel, donated by Rambler followers, in token of his 20 years at St. Mary's coach.

Coach Ennio Arboit of St. Ambrose college delivered the principal address. Other speakers were Coach Sueppel, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Carl H. Meinberg, Athletic Director E. G. Schroeder of the University of Iowa, and Father Toehr of St. Ambrose. Father Herman Strub, formerly assistant pastor at St. Mary's and now at Holy Family in Davenport, was toastmaster.

Fathers Hines, McElenny and Menke of Iowa City, and Father Clems of Solon also were guests, as well as local newspaper representatives.

Coach Sueppel presented his basketball squad, which included the four graduating seniors: Andy Chuckalaks, Jack Shrader, Bart Toohy and Bill Sueppel. Others are Rittenmeyer, Lenoch, Boyd, J. Sueppel, Mottet, Rocca, Black, Bauer, Flannery, Brogla and Milder. Also Charlie Owens, Equipment manager; Bobby Sueppel, Towel boy; and cheerleaders Lyle Seydel, Marty Barbara Kubik, Mary Rita Bushman and Marilyn and Catherine Mottet were present.

Buffalo Pair Win

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The Buffalo combination of John Gworek and Henry Knidowski won last night the 1946 American Bowling Congress doubles championship.

Miami Pro Grid Club Has 37 Southerners Under Contract

MIAMI, FLA., (AP)—No doubt about it, suh, the southernmost professional football team is going to represent the real south—south, that is.

More than two-thirds of the 37 players under contract to the Miami Seahawks of the new All-America conference are graduates of schools below the Mason-Dixon line.

Several others have genuine southern accents although they strayed to colleges "up nawth" to pursue their education and display their grid talents.

Marion's Hit Wins for Cards In 11th Frame

BROOKLYN (AP) — Marty Marion, "Mr. Shortstop" of the St. Louis Cardinals, punched a single into centerfield with two out and the bases loaded in the 11th inning to give the Red Birds a hard-fought 7-5 victory over Brooklyn in the first meeting between the two red-hot National league contenders at Ebbets Field yesterday.

The spirited crew from the west showed the stuff that champions are made of, and lefty Max Lanier pitched his heart out to achieve his fifth straight win against no losses. The loss reduced the Dodgers lead over the cards to a single game.

It was anybody's decision until the lanky Marion solved little Vic Lombardi, fourth Brooklyn flinger, for the pay-off punch in the 11th, before 32,918 loyal adherents crammed into the Flatbush arena.

For a time it looked as though the Dodgers might pull another out of the fire. Trailing 0-5, they came back to wallop Lanier and tie it up tight, 5-5, at the end of the seventh.

But this time the eastern leaders were up against a pitcher who didn't intend to lose. For the last four innings Lanier with the sharp-breaking curve had them baffled with men on the sacks.

Little Hawk Tennis Team Tips Burlington

Iowa City high's tennis team took an easy win over Burlington yesterday afternoon, 8-1 in a match held on the Little Hawk's courts. Burlington won one match when Brigham defeated Freeman, 7-5 and 6-3, in the singles.

Other results in the singles were Higley over Wischmeier, 6-3 and 6-2; Emmert over Burman, 6-1 and 6-2; Workhauen over McLaughlin, 8-6 and 6-3; Strasburg over Sprock, 6-2 and 6-2; Thomas over Maurer, 7-5, 4-6, and 6-1.

In the doubles, which were all Little Hawk victories, Higley and Emmert topped Wischmeier and Brigham, 6-1 and 6-1; Freeman

Riding herd on the aggregation will be Jack Meagher, who directed the football fortunes of Auburn and later of the Iowa preflight Seahawks.

The southern boys and their southern coach should shape up into one of the conference's better teams. Among the backfield stars are Jimmy Nelson of Alabama, Monk Gafford of Auburn, Dub Jones of Louisiana State and Tulane, Don "Bull" Reece of Missouri and Marion Pugh of Texas A. & M. and the New York Giants.

City Softball League Sets Rules of Play

Ground rules for the coming season were decided last night at a meeting of the board of directors in the City Softball league. The league will start play during the early part of June.

The games will be played at the Benton street playground, with games being called at 6 p. m. When the diamond at Brown and Lucas streets is completed the league will transfer its game site to the new playing field.

Ten teams have announced their intention to enter the league. Team rosters and new entries should be turned in to the recreation center by May 20th.

It was decided at the meeting that tied games and games postponed for any reason will be played off at the end of the round in which those games were scheduled. It was also ruled that games would be decided if either team was ten runs ahead at the end of any complete inning after five innings had been played. If any team cannot field seven men at 8:30 p. m. the contest will be forfeited to the opposition.

and Strasburg defeated Sprock and Maurer, 6-3, 2-6 and 6-3. The Hawklets will see action on the Iowa City courts this Saturday, when they enter the district matches. As yet, the only other team entered is Davenport high school.

Eldora Superintendent Tells of Iowa Training School Problems in Talk to I.C. Men's Clubs

Former High School Principal Emphasizes Deficiency of Funds

Fred N. Cooper, superintendent of the Eldora training school, addressed a joint luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and Masonic organizations yesterday and discussed problems faced by the school.

"It is the responsibility of every Iowan to see that these boys have the proper training and rehabilitation," Cooper said, "We have done everything we can to raise the morale of the boys, but we need something to work with," he added.

Cooper, former Ft. Dodge high school principal, was appointed head of the school last September after a series of escapes and riots, during which time the national guard was called out to aid school authorities.

"The two most important things for the school are, money, to hire and maintain a properly trained and equipped staff to carry on the work; and improved facilities, so we can achieve proper living and working conditions for the boys in the school," Cooper said.

Riots and strikes are a constant source of trouble, Cooper said. He is constantly called upon to aid in settling a battle or assist the staff in maintaining discipline.

Major disturbances since Cooper took charge include: an accidental shooting of one of the boys, followed by a near riot; an influenza epidemic, with inadequate hospital facilities and the boys so distrustful of the authorities they expected the medicine to be poison; a battle between staff personnel which finally involved 42 boys, and resulted in the dismissal of four staff members; and a trench mouth epidemic involving 34 boys.

The existence of sodomy was discovered in the school by Cooper, and the State Bureau of Investigation was notified. An investigation, conducted by Dwight Bender of the bureau, school officials, and public stenographers, produced 74 signed statements of sex perversion, including 59 boys who were definite cases.

"I contacted the attorney general, in an effort to isolate these cases from the rest of the boys," he continued. "Finally we were permitted to take over the women's reformatory at Anamosa, providing we boarded it up, and maintained an institution entirely separate from the men's reformatory."

There were 93 boys in the Eldora annex, until public opinion forced their removal. The boys were tested by psychologists, and as a result some were sent to mental institutions but 42 were returned to Eldora. These boys are a core of present and future perversion, Cooper emphasized.

"The school was built in 1867, and hasn't changed much since," Cooper said, in emphasizing the poor condition of the property. He mentioned a recent fire prevention drive when they found two buildings so deteriorated that the bricks would not support fire escapes.

In a brief summary of statistics Cooper showed that only 3 states in the union, Arkansas, South Carolina and Oklahoma, spent less money per capita on their boys than Iowa.

"We are trying to change the psychology to one of rewarding good behavior rather than punishment for wrong," Cooper stated. "We have some boys who can and will be rehabilitated and it is the duty of the community to take over and help them get on their feet."

Cooper told of a group of Cedar Rapids businessmen who have appointed a committee to help such cases get settled. So far they have had five boys assigned to them. All of the five boys have been lo-

SUI Forum Attacks—Franco Spain

"So long as Franco rules Spain in a world of fear and hunger democratic nations dare not close their eyes to this breeding ground of hate and violence," was the warning of the World Affairs forum's first broadcast over WSUI last night.

Starting their series of weekly broadcasts entitled "Review of Nations" with a resume of 1946 Spain, members of the forum set a precedent for subsequent broadcasts with digests of political, social and economic implications present in their "spotlighted" country of the week.

Spain today is far different than 19th century Spain, according to forum broadcasters. The gay Spain of the story books is now a land in the throes of economic disaster, political unrest, and social misery. Franco, and his one-party Falangist government, have returned the country to a feudal economy, with all of the freedom commonly conceded to humanity highly restricted.

"Spain's basic government seems to lie around the dictatorship of Franco," claimed forum members. "Spain could not cope with it before, and now it is a problem for the entire world."

Work Started On Centennial

Fireworks to Highlight Five Day Celebration June 30 to July 4

Final arrangements for the five-day Johnson county centennial celebration, June 30 to July 4, are "swiftly taking form," Robert Forrest, celebration chairman, reported yesterday.

Rides, concessions, dancing and other entertainment will be featured at the city park, focal point of the celebration, Forrest said. A fireworks display will highlight activities the night of July 4.

Organizations are being asked to prepare floats for the parade scheduled for the Fourth of July, and rural communities are urged to participate in the Iowa City celebration.

Prizes will be awarded for the best bears grown for the centennial. Bears will be judged on the types best typifying the times of a century ago.

Johnson county residents are urged to search for articles in vogue a century ago for special store displays during the celebration.

The retail trade division of the Chamber of Commerce and Johnson county schools will cooperate with the committee in making further arrangements for the celebration.

Boy Scouts to Hold House to House Food Drive Here Saturday

Only labeled canned food is acceptable. No food in glass or breakable containers will be collected.

Gregg urged the people of Iowa City to cooperate in this vital relief drive.

Editors of Ladies Home Journal—

SUI Graduates Return for Visit

By LA VONNE HOLM

Bruce and Beatrice Blackmar Gould, editors of the Ladies Home Journal, who were in Iowa City for a brief visit yesterday, reminded about the days when Bruce—you get the feeling that's what he wants you to call him—washed dishes at the old university hospital to pay his way through the University of Iowa.

Yesterday, after more than 20 years, he and his wife were sitting in that same building, now East hall, renewing old acquaintances.

The story of Bruce and Beatrice Gould is perhaps the typical story of a young couple who made good. They met here at the University of Iowa. Bruce was acting in a school play when Mrs. Gould, then Beatrice Blackmar, first saw him. She said she remembers remarking to her roommate when she saw him on stage, "He looks kind of nice."

Bruce, with Warren Bassett and Harold Andrews, organized and edited Frivol, university humor magazine. Beatrice took her cue and "played a very active part in selling the magazine."

Bruce interrupted the interview to say he always made it a point to hire pretty girls to sell Frivol. Beatrice, who was editor of The Daily Iowan for the 1920 summer session, went to work for the Ottumwa Courier at $6 a week after graduation.

"It was a very substantial salary in those days," she said. She soon left Ottumwa to work for the Des Moines Capital and the Des Moines Tribune, where Bruce was very conveniently reporting for the Register and Tribune.

"Bea, being a much brighter person than I, received the Lydia Roberts Fellowship at Columbia university," Bruce said. She left for New York, and Bruce, who intended to be a play-wright, "happened to be on the same train." With them at the time was Harlan Miller, now columnist for the Des Moines Register.

Bruce and Miller eventually worked the night shift for the United Press in Boston. Since they both valued their leisure, as Beatrice put it, they worked alternate nights. By splitting the week's salary they made $17.50 a week each.

While Beatrice was studying for her M.S. degree at Columbia university's school of journalism, Bruce started to write a play called "The Woman You Marry."

"You see, since I'd been a bachelor for so long, I knew all about marriage," he grinned. When he reached the middle of the second act, he married Beatrice and never did finish the play.

They both got their start in journalism by writing short stories—Beatrice for the Pictorial Review and the Ladies Home Journal, and Bruce for the Saturday Evening Post. Bruce says Beatrice sold her stories just so she could buy a new coat.

After reporting for the New York Sun and the Evening Post, Bruce became associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post in 1934. July 1, 1935, the two of them became editors of the Ladies Home Journal.

Beatrice's advice to young journalists is this: "If you want to be a writer, then write and write whatever you're interested in. Don't write for the market, though there's no harm in aiming to sell."

your stories, but write what you want to write."

Bruce suggested, "The trouble with people is that they think writing is dissociated from living. They think writing is an arrangement of words rather than a presentation of life to someone else."

"I was saved from this fate because I had to earn my living from the age of 13. I would be a day laborer or a cab driver. The way to learn how it feels to scrub floors is to scrub floors. A writer's job is to communicate a feeling of life."
